Who participates in wind2share?

Institutions provide expertise and knowledge and they wish to convey their messages to users.

Members refer users to the institutions, and share with them the knowledge and expertise.

Users are the final beneficiaries of the interaction with the institutions.

In a world conquered by social networking and technology, we believe personal relationships can be empowered by the combination of both elements.

We want to be a catalyst for all the members' capabilities and give them the impulse and tools necessary to project their potential.

The interaction between institutions, members and users is a key component of our network and it also gives the sense of community and teamwork, as vehicles to reach collective success.
